About the FDP:

This Faculty Development Programme is being organised to give the teaching and research community, knowledge of contemporary techniques for research and teaching. The learned speakers will discuss the complexities of research and disseminate the multi-dimensional approaches that may be useful in both learning and research. The accessibility barriers and knowledge gaps faced by researchers shall also be identified by the resources persons and discussed in detail along with possible solutions and reforms wherever necessary. This pedagogical approach-based programme will be conducted by some of the most distinguished academics and professionals who will equip participants with the necessary skill sets required to upgrade their research and teaching skills. The Programme aims at being instrumental in introducing the participants to the emerging horizons of research methodology and providing them sufficient awareness of the same. The programme will provide a golden opportunity for distinguished research scholar and faculties to engage and collaborate with the senior faculty members and professionals and to have a first-hand understanding of their experiences and perspectives pertaining to teaching and research.
